Road safety a direct result of our value system

If a pedestrian steps out into flowing traffic without looking, whether the vehicle that hits him is doing 30, 40, 50, or 60 kph, the collision is the pedestrian’s fault. However, science confirms that if the vehicle is travelling at 30kph, the pedestrian is to blame, if not, why not, and what should be done about that? By whom? It is a universal truth, now widely acknowledged, that a law must be “respected” in order for it to work. To break the glass ceiling and to continue being a remarkable woman in all aspects of my life.

What plans for the future?

To break the glass ceiling and to continue being a remarkable woman in all aspects of my life.

Road safety a direct result of our value system

If a pedestrian steps out into flowing traffic without looking, whether the vehicle that hits him is doing 30, 40, 50, or 60 kph, the collision is the pedestrian’s fault. However, science confirms that if the vehicle is travelling at 30kph, the pedestrian is to blame, if not, why not, and what should be done about that? By whom? It is a universal truth, now widely acknowledged, that a law must be “respected” in order for it to work. To break the glass ceiling and to continue being a remarkable woman in all aspects of my life.

What plans for the future?

To break the glass ceiling and to continue being a remarkable woman in all aspects of my life.

Road safety a direct result of our value system

If a pedestrian steps out into flowing traffic without looking, whether the vehicle that hits him is doing 30, 40, 50, or 60 kph, the collision is the pedestrian’s fault. However, science confirms that if the vehicle is travelling at 30kph, the pedestrian is to blame, if not, why not, and what should be done about that? By whom? It is a universal truth, now widely acknowledged, that a law must be “respected” in order for it to work. To break the glass ceiling and to continue being a remarkable woman in all aspects of my life.

What plans for the future?

To break the glass ceiling and to continue being a remarkable woman in all aspects of my life.